

FACTSHEET

THE MANAGER

Investment Objective & Strategy

The Crabel Advanced Trend UCITS Fund is advised by Los Angeles based managed futures trading pioneer, Crabel Capital Management, LLC. Crabel Advanced Trend is a systematic trading portfolio designed to efficiently capture long-term trend following returns with the objective of delivering a competitive risk-adjusted return with greater alpha relative to the broader trend following industry. In pursuing this objective, Crabel Advanced Trend will employ multiple, price-driven, systematic strategies that participate in market trends across a diversified global portfolio of managed futures and foreign exchange instruments. The program seeks to control risk by dynamic sizing of new trades relative to market volatility, the use of stops and a balance of volatility broadly diversified across sectors and geographic regions. Crabel Advanced Trend has an approximate 35-45 day average hold timeframe and targets a 15% annualized standard deviation.

Monthly Commentary

The Crabel Advanced Trend UCITS Fund posted a return of -0.11% in June, bringing the year-to-date return to -9.56%. While Foreign Exchange and Stock Indices traded negatively on the month, Commodities and Fixed Income were both positive. A good year-to-date return in Fixed Income is notable given that Advanced Trend's dominant position in US markets has switched over the last several years from long interest rate futures to short, and therefore against carry. Still, the positive return in Fixed Income in June was not sufficient to overcome difficulties across the rest of the portfolio. Foreign Exchange continues to be very difficult for the portfolio as has been the case for the last several months. While late April into May was principally about the reversal of the long-term trend in the Euro and US Dollar -- moves that caused a reduction in exposure for Advanced Trend in G7 markets -- June was marked by choppy markets that did not see an overall continuation of the Euro and US Dollar corrections. As a result, the main negative contributors in Foreign Exchange were non-G7 instruments including the Chinese Yuan, Korean Won and South African Rand. Conversely, there were several good trend opportunities in June and the Advanced Trend portfolio was able to take advantage. Energy markets surged to relative highs, while Corn and Soybeans also produced very strong opportunities. In general, market moves over the course of the first half of 2018 have caused Advanced Trend to reduce overall risk, notably in February when equity indices saw a significant retracement, but also more recently in response to foreign exchange moves over the last eight weeks. The portfolio now sits at a relatively low risk overall exposure and may be in a good position to capture the emergence of new trends moving into the second half of the year.

Why Advanced Trend?

- Thoughtful Design. Intuitive research into time-frame selection, sector exposure, volatility interpretation and trend quality identification is leveraged to maximize trend capture.
- Aggressive Trading Cost Reduction. The cost to execute a trend following strategy adds up far more quickly than is realized. Trade slippage is reduced through Crabel's proprietary algorithmic execution infrastructure.
- Structurally Diversified. The program is timeframe and sector diversified trading a broad array of derivative instruments.
