

Giano UCITS Fund

Long/Short Equity

February 2020

Performance Returns

The Giano UCITS Fund (EUR Class R Pooled Shares) returned -3.1% for February.

Investment Objective & Strategy

Giano Capital is a long-short equity fund that thrives on innovation by delivering quality investment propositions through highly experienced individuals and machine learning methodologies. The fund vigorously pursues and thrives on innovation; focusing on the integration of new machine learning technology. We have a highly experienced team centred on finding equity opportunities utilising tools that improve the productivity of the investment process, allowing us to identify a greater number of opportunities whilst being more objective and disciplined.

Effective and efficient automation of parts of the investment process, where possible utilising the learning methodologies of the "machine" are used to make quality investment decisions quickly and objectively, complementing the subjective experience of the fund manager.

Monthly Commentary

The S&P closed down 8.4% and the Eurostoxx down 8.4%.

Best sectors in Europe were Utilities and Technology; the worst Oi&Gas and Travel&Leisure.

In the Fund, the best were Plus500 (long) and Pets at Home (short); the worst GVC and Ocado (both longs).

As I am writing, on the 10th of March, the Eurostoxx is down about 20% year to date.

We have been able to anticipate the impact on markets of the virus crisis in the last few days as we saw the number of deaths in Italy developing in a very ominous way at the beginning of March. It is clear to me that two Italian regions (Lombardy and Emilia Romagna) lost control over the spread of it while others (Veneto is a good example) has been pretty good in limiting the damage. We may see other countries more at risk (Spain, France and the USA) learning from the Italian experience, but they have to be monitored closely.

The number of deaths in Italy is destined to spiral up over the next 10 and 20 days in spite of the new measures and that will keep on having a negative impact on market conditions.

I would not be surprised if the authorities decided to restrict short selling, so we need to be prepared for that too.

Two important positives for the European and US economies are the collapse of the oil price and the fact that the present demand crisis is happening with low inventories at the industrial level.

I believe that after the huge sell off of Monday the 9th of March the market internals will move very defensive following the move of the bond market.

Our systems are signalling very good buying opportunities on a number of defensive stocks and we are selecting those companies that have the best operating characteristics inside those that have gone extreme.

Eventually, I believe that it will end up like 1998 where the crisis caused the authorities to intervene and was followed by the stock market bubble.
