Performance Returns

The Tosca Micro Cap UCITS Fund returned 3.67% in January (GBP Institutional share class).

Investment Objective & Strategy

Whilst January wasn't able to replicate December's surge in NAV, the Fund still rose by a healthy 3.7% (net).

We mentioned in our last letter that the Fund was exposed to a large number of companies with December financial year-ends and that therefore January would be a news flow heavy month. That is exactly how it played out, with company updates and trading statements providing incrementally positive news flow which in turn drove performance.

Two of our biggest positions both upgraded expectations for 2020 and 2021, whilst a host of smaller names also released encouraging trading statements. The largest contributor in the month was Tremor (1.52% to NAV performance). A fourth upgrade since Q2 20 saw sales, EBITDA and net cash expectations all increased by >10%. Tremor's digital advertising platform benefits from substantial operational gearing such that faster growth feeds through materially to profits and cash. Indeed, cash balances will be higher even after a $10m planned share buyback. We feel that its focus on connected TV and its partnership with

News Corp post the acquisition of Unruly, will continue to drive momentum here and we are hopeful of further upgrades through 2021.

Meanwhile, early in the month, Maxcyte (+1.31%) announced that it had secured its 12th commercial partnership for its gene editing technology. This was followed up by a strong year-end update with revenues trading >10% ahead of plan, which in turn drove 10-15% upgrades for FY21. The company is still on track for a Nasdaq listing in 2021 which opens up an entirely new investor pool which will be keen to buy into this maturing story. In both cases we remain very comfortable with our weightings in these names.

One necessary side effect of larger positions growing faster is that the average weighted market cap of the fund has steadily increased. We do though continue to scour the market for new exciting niche opportunities. In the month, we opened four new positions and closed one (Premier Foods). The average market cap of these four is a little over £100m and currently they only account for 4% of NAV so there is scope to scale as we recycle capital. Importantly, three of the companies we have known for many years while the fourth investment was triggered by a trusted executive joining said business. We look forward to discussing these in more detail in the coming months.
