

FACTSHEET

Performance Returns

For the month of February 2019 the Drakens Africa ex S.A. UCITS Fund's NAV gained 3.5%, beating the 1.9% performance of the Standard & Poor's All Africa ex-South Africa benchmark.

Investment Objective & Strategy

Drakens Capital employs a long only equity strategy with a heavy focus on sustainability that is the result of two decades of investing in emerging markets. The investment philosophy at Drakens Capital is distilled into a four factor investment valuation model that encompasses Socially Responsible Investing, Risk, Quality and Value. The Fund invests in equities which derive the majority of earnings from the African continent, with the exception of those listed in South Africa. The tremendous growth opportunities found on the continent provide a rapidly expanding pool of investment opportunities. Growth and volatility often go hand in hand hence the Fund's measured and systematic investment approach seeks to tap into the emergence of the African continent whilst mitigating the risks associated with the Africa Rising story.

Market Commentary

In February we saw strong performances on most of the African (ex South Africa) equity markets – a continuation of the rally seen in January. Gains were achieved in the BRVM (West African common monetary union), Egyptian, Nigerian and Kenyan exchanges, with returns of 6.8%, 5.8%, 4.2% and 2.1% in USD respectively. The Mauritian and Moroccan markets however underperformed for a second month in a row, with index declines of 0.1% and 2.2% in USD respectively. Despite the generally strong performances in the African markets, we did witness some softness in the last week of the month, mirroring the direction in global emerging markets. This serves as a reminder that the uncertainty around the US-China trade deal still looms over these markets.

The Nigerian election was delayed by a week, but voting and counting were concluded by month end, with the incumbent, Buhari, being re-elected as president. Buhari's win on an anti-corruption ticket shows that the majority of Nigerians are willing to endure some sluggishness in near term economic growth in return for a cleaner government. The market reacted positively to the announcement, although this was possibly just due to the passing of a perceived risk event.

December 2018 results continued trickling out in February for the fund's constituents. In particular we saw strong results for the large bank holdings in the fund. Zenith Bank in Nigeria achieved an ROE of 24% for the year, despite trading on a price to book below one times. Credit Agricole Egypt beat estimates to grow earnings 21% for the year and achieved 20% growth in its loan book. This suggests private sector investment is returning to the Egyptian economy. Mauritius Commercial Bank released half year results to December with earnings up 18%, in line with our thesis for the stock. On the negative side, Nigerian Breweries released a very weak set of numbers, pulled down by a weak consumer environment and competition from AB Inbev. Whilst the fund remains underweight in the name, this does suggest that the Nigerian consumer remains under pressure.

During the month the Reserve Bank of Zimbabwe devalued the peg of its bond notes to the USD. So far we have not seen this bringing liquidity back to the foreign currency market, and believe the extent of the devaluation was not significant enough to entice demand. The fund's exposure to Zimbabwe remains limited to 0.7%.
